Drayton Valley residents check on homes in Fort Mac

Monica Latta
Western Review

As Fort McMurray residents are slowly heading back to their homes, some of the residents who now live in Drayton Valley are checking up on their homes as well.

Sudashana Chakrabarty, who lives in Drayton Valley and is a former Fort McMurray resident, went back to check on her home recently.

"Since I learned about the fire, I was calling everyone frantically," she said.

A friend of hers sent a picture to Chakrabarty to convince her that her house was still standing.

"For this past month, I haven't been able to sleep. This is a house I built from scratch, being a single mother," she said while adding that she had recently finished renovations on her house with an addition of a new roof.

Her renters had about 30 minutes to pack up and leave when the evacuation warnings were coming in.

Going back recently to check on her house was an emotional trip for Chakrabarty, and tears were rolling down her eyes when she hit highway 63. She could see charred trees and burned down forest about 100 km south of Fort McMurray and "we will rebuild" signs along the way.

"When I entered Fort McMurray, the firefighters and RCMP were there welcoming me back. Everyone around hugged me and I didn't even know the residents are arriving."

For Jim Hoeschele, another former resident of Fort McMurray, who sold his house when he permanently moved to Drayton Valley, said he is certain his former house has burnt down.

"From the highway my house would have been right along that wall of fire, because it faced the highway and it was right on the tree line," he said.

He added that he is glad to have moved to Drayton Valley and for his life here.

"I would've lost everything and obviously business isn't going to rebound and I am in the hospitality industry and it's going to take a long time to recover," he said.

He is reaching out to his former colleagues and friends in Fort McMurray area and offering help when it comes to employment or offering a place to stay.

The chain reaction of offering help and being there for each other is continuing in many communities in Alberta. When Chakrabarty was heading back to Drayton Valley after her trip to Fort McMurray, everyone told her to drive safely and when she got back, she checked her phone and there were more than 110 messages waiting for her from her Drayton Valley friends.

From late night messages from colleagues and dinner invitations, Chakrabarty is grateful for all the support she has been receiving in the Drayton Valley community.

Opinion

Fort McMurray, a story of hope

The massive forest fire that has consumed an estimated 1,600 homes in Fort McMurray is now being considered one of the worst disasters in Canadian history. It was, during the 2013 floods that ravaged Alberta, ordinary Albertans are stepping up and showing the residents of Fort McMurray that, as Albertans, we will always take care of our own.

The tragedy that has befallen Fort McMurray has taken center stage for most Albertans who are courageously and selflessly stepping up to lend a hand in every way possible. Stories of heroic acts of citizenship are filling the internet proving once again that the spirit of Albertans will never be broken.

Wildfire official Opposition leader Brian Iken was one of those that lost his home, but in spite of his own personal loss, he remains focused on what's important to all of us as Albertans. Iken credited first responders saying, "You know what did make me happy is the fact that nobody was hurt. No animals were hurt. No people were hurt. As far as we're aware, there have been no casualties in the town itself or around the city radius."

Fort McMurray's troubles have created a crisis that the entire province of Alberta has responded to with an outpouring of compassion and relief. The province of Alberta has offered free lodging, food, and clothing to those fleeing the devastation with some accepting complete relocation into their homes without the slightest hesitation.

The ongoing wildfires have shown that when the going gets tough Canadians across this country can put their differences aside and come together for the welfare of others. It's at times like these that we put politics aside and come to the rescue of those who face uncertainty and devastation. It's this sense of community that exists in Canada that makes it one of the best places to live and raise a family in the world.

It's times of disaster that we realize that Alberta is blessed with some of the best first-responders anywhere in the world. The commitment of Alberta's first-responders is something that can only be described as selfless no matter the emergency, no matter the location, and no matter the danger — they are always there to help those in need.

The efforts of most of the heroes in the story of Fort McMurray will never be recognized publicly, their names will forever remain anonymous but their collective contributions are the foundation of hope that Alberta is built on. In the days and weeks to come, there will be a lot of help required beyond just material loss. By the look of the response of Alberta in this first week, this effort will undoubtedly end up being another incredible story of ultimate sacrifice and bravery. The story of Fort McMurray will not be a story of tragedy; it will be a story of hope.

If you would like to help or donate to the victims of the Fort McMurray fire you can do so by contacting the Red Cross at 1-800-418-1111.

That elusive thing called happiness

Justin's Journey
Justin Kimdon

There is a happiness I found within. That we shouldn't be looking for happiness from others or material things. One piece of advice that I keep hearing is to never depend on my happiness in someone or something because once that person or that thing is gone, then you'll be back to zero. But what should you do when someone or something comes into your life and makes your day brighter and your heart happier? You were content with being alone or not having that material thing in your life and then one day, this someone or something presents itself and you gladly took that person or thing in. But then you start to worry, what happens when this person or thing is gone? One would think you would just go back to being content as you were before you met this person or had this thing. But the truth is you won't. You'll feel like something is missing. It's like on a scale of 1 to 10 with 10 being the happiest, you were a 10 before you met them, and then you were 10 out of 10 after meeting them, but when they leave you end up being back to 1.

This is why I am afraid to be so happy because it almost always follows that life is about to bring you down. Life, as we already know, goes up and down. When you are up, there is no other way but to go down but then again, when you are down, there is no other way to go but up.

My real problem is worrying about something that hasn't happened yet. I worry about the future instead of truly enjoying the moment and the fact that I am happy now. But then again, I ask myself, am I genuinely happy or am I just trying to myself?

Provincial Court News

Cathy Westman
Western Review

In Provincial Court on June 7, Jordan Martin learned his fate concerning his future after pleading guilty on treason to a residential band and enter in October of last year. The complainant said the perpetrator was reasonably his spouse and a girlfriend. The items were later discovered on display at another residence.

In November of last year, RCMP investigated a security in a newly-developed condominium. The person officer talked to told them it was Martin who showed them how to get into the condominium. Also that same month, Martin was observed walking side by side with his girlfriend, despite having been told by a judge to have no contact with her. He was caught again in January of this year with his girlfriend at 1830 Main Street. On January 18, RCMP was investigating a theft at Lacombe County Outfitter, where a fence had been out on selling a person's own stolen. The police followed two men of suspicion to the store. The police followed them and the girlfriend were discovered and found the girlfriend reached their boxes. The Police had had information also when the couple were taken.

On January 12, RCMP received a complaint by the mother of Martin's girlfriend, saying that the girlfriend had broken on her own. Martin was subsequently arrested for breach of probation and assault.

Since his arrest, Martin has spent a total of 144 days in custody. After hearing that the 29-year-old had no previous record but was using methamphetamine during the time of the offence, Judge John Haggerty imposed 600 hours of jail time and close to $1,000 worth of victim care surcharges. Upon his release, Martin will be put on a year's probation, with conditions to keep the peace and be of good behaviour, contact his parole officer with any changes to his name, address or place of employment. He must report to a parole officer within five days of his release, consent to any searches, treatment or counselling determined by the parole officer and provide written notification of attendance in classes. He is also to abstain from alcohol and non-prescription drugs and provide samples of his breath, blood or urine when requested.

When Judge Haggerty asked Martin if he had anything to say, he replied, "I'm grateful for being caught," adding that after spending the time in jail, he's going to try and get his life back together.

Haggerty told him he was very lucky in the fact that he has a supportive mother and sister and a home to go to when he is released from custody, and he suggested that he talk to a parole officer to determine what it was that sent him into a crime spree in the first place.

County will cover most of the energy audit costs

Monte Lulla
Western Review

Brasau County council carried a motion to pay for two-thirds of 100 energy audits to assess energy needs for residents who are interested.

County will organize an education session and will pay 100 energy audits. County residents would pay one-third of the cost while County will cover two-thirds of the cost of energy assessments.

Initially, County was debating to give away 100 energy audits, but changed at a recent County council meeting when council decided to give five energy audits as door prizes.

"There may be backlash if we give away 100 per cent," said Reeve Bart Guyon.

Coun. Maryann Thomson said there needs to be a buy-in component along with the education component.

Coun. Shirley Mahan said a similar event had to be cancelled recently due to lack of interest, so council had to do something to generate more interest.

A motion was then carried to give away five assessments and that County would pay two-thirds of each assessment. Coun. Anthony Heinrich and Marc Gressler were not in favour.

Gressler said the reason he put forward an education program idea to council was to encourage people to learn and County can help them do so by covering costs.

SUPPORTING STARS
A representative from STARS had recently asked County Council for funding to support the organization.

Brasau County administration recommended to not provide funding to the organization because donations from the citizens of this area totalled to more than $347,000.

"County is well supporting them," said Coun. Anthony Heinrich in agreement with administration. To that comment, Shirley Mahan said that it isn't the County that's supporting them, it's County citizens.

"County citizens are supporting to learn and County can help them do so by covering costs."

A motion was carried to contribute more than $1,000 to STARS for 2016 and administration to include a yearly $2 per capita contribution to STARS as part of their annual budget.

MORE FUNDING FOR FUNNELL HALL
A motion was carried to donate about $30,000 to Funnell Community Society for hall and ground repairs.

The motion came after the County donated about $24,000 previously to match the CTEF grant that the society has applied.

BRASAU GYMNASIUMS CLUB
Representatives from Brasau Gymnastics Club were at the County council meeting recently to request funding.

The local club wants to open their next door and create a larger space for gymnasts. In a letter, the president of the club, Melodie Smith, said the space has been offered to them at a subsidized amount, but they need the money for equipment.

The total amount they need is about $10,000.

The members confirmed that the club has about two thirds County gymnasts and about a third Town gymnasts.

A motion was carried for administration to prepare a request for Alberta Bands stand united for Fort McMurray in Drayton Valley.

Various communities in Alberta are organizing the same day on June 20 under the umbrella of the Arts Touring Alliance of Alberta to raise money for Fort McMurray.

In Drayton Valley, the Eleanor Picture Arts Centre (EPAC), along with the Drayton Valley Rotary Club, are organizing a musical fundraiser and multiple Drayton Valley Music Festival Provincial nominees will be performing as well as special guest appearances by Kristy Ferlie, Morgan Galavon, Doyle Cathol, Suzie Shaw and the Drayton Valley Jazz Band.

There will be a cash donation at the show at BPAE, where the event will take place, and all the money will go towards rebuilding Fort McMurray. The Alberta Bands Together website states that the immediate danger in Fort McMurray is over and the money will go towards rebuilding the community.

In keeping with the theme of being the second of being the second, we also encourage groups to work with organizations that have chapters in Fort McMurray (Rotary, Kinsmen, etc) who can create community projects with lasting results," stated the Alberta Bands Together website.

Other events on the same day are organized in Airdrie, Fort Saskatchewan and in the Tri-Region of Spruce Grove, Stony Plain and Parkland County.

Before you leave the dock, make sure that you have a checklist and run through it.
Have a checklist for each person on board. Have a visible distress nals like daytime flares or smoke and night time flashlight.

Do not consume alcohol and operate a motor boat.
Maintain a safe speed and be aware of other boats and swimmers.

the water.
The top five factors in boat accidents are careless or reckless

Warriors alumni basketball

It was an amazing turnout for our 2016 Warriors alumni event held May 7 at the Frank Maddock High School gymnasium. A total of $1,125.00 was raised for FMHS basketball to help fund team expenses. Coaches for the basketball reunion were Dave Schwindt and (the Honourable MEd) Mark Smith.

A huge thank you to all the players that hit the court today (Planned for next year on Monday's Day weekend Sunday afternoon again and open to all FMHS basketball alumni). Hats off to James Kelly and Evan Schwindt for helping organize the event. Also a big thank you to our Coach Dave Schwindt, who has done more than anyone for basketball at our hometown basketball family. Drayton Valley is in retirement, he's still a pillar for our hometown basketball family. (FMHS Warriors)

Basketball Alumni Facebook page/Jeff Urvick. "Thankful for my hometown basketball family today! Great reunion and alumni game. I don't think I'd be where I am today if it wasn't for a strong support network through sport. Also, huge shout-out to my dad for influencing so many people in the Drayton basketball community in his lifetime" (Evan Schwindt)

SUDOKU

Here's how it works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a Sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle.

Jenni Thomson, MScW, Social Worker
As a social worker at the Primary Care Network, I assist patients with social issues to help them enhance their living situation and improve their quality of life. I do this by completing an assessment with the patient and then assisting them to access supports and to navigate the health system. I can do this in many ways but some examples of how I do this include: advocacy by being involved with, assistance with applications, referral to other community and health care based agencies, participating in community activities to enhance the health of the community as a whole and collaborating with the mental health team to provide psycho-educational groups. I am dedicated to my work as a social worker and love working with the patients in this community.

IS THERE A PROBLEM WITH TRUCKING OFF THE ROAD?

Don Liddington
Approximate Manager
YES! Never flush your OGV in any water body, until you have access to appropriate washing facilities. Washing your OGV in a creek or river, for example, is not only illegal under the Public Lands Administration Regulations but disturbs the stream bed, can disrupt or damage fish habitat and can potentially lead to fuel leakage and other toxic substances being leaked into the stream.

Rules for Random Camping
What are the rules regarding random camping on public land in any form or building under and how do I minimize my impact?
Random camping is allowed on most public land for a period of up to 14 days. There are some additional restrictions on grazing leases and on Public Land Use Zones (PLUZ). Limit your impact by:
- staying back 30 metres from any creek
- dumping all black or grey water at a designated dumping station
- staying out of wet or soft areas
- taking ALL garbage home, including burnt "stuff" in the fire pit
- keeping your fire safe
- storing food properly
- keeping pets controlled

About 35 per cent residents favour agriplex

Marta Lulla
Western Review

Public consultation for a potential agriplex facility finds that 36 per cent of Drayton Valley residents confirm that an agriplex facility is needed, with the number is 18 per cent among the county residents.

At a recent joint council meeting between Brazeau County and Town of Drayton Valley agriplex public consultation findings were shared with the council. Residents in Drayton Valley and Brazeau County agree, public consultation shows that families participate more in the farmers' market with 82 per cent and rodeo at 50 per cent. Other activities that residents in the area participate in are rodeo shows, fairs or festivals, agriculture related activities, vehicle or equipment shows or sales and horse shows and sales.

A strong stakeholder findings of the public consultation in the amenities and improvements at the facility may include indoor arena space with a permanent dirt floor, between 1,200 to 1,800 spectators seating, meeting rooms, concession stand, parking, covered stables, wash racks and horse care. The cost estimate for such a facility is about $15 million, which does not include the cost of land. The next step for the town and county is to decide whether to proceed and for malice agreements and finances.

We seem to see in the soft dim light
A face we once knew so well
Recalling her as the sun's first rays
Shine down on the earth
We miss her more as time goes on
Than when she first left us
And the lamp of our love has burned
The light of her love in our hearts
We miss her more as time goes on
Than when she first left us
We miss her more as time goes on
Than when she first left us
We miss her more as time goes on
Than when she first left us

St. Anthony holds Wake-A-Thon

Carby Westman
Western Review

From 8 a.m. to June 5 until 9 a.m. on June 5, 32 students took part in a wake-a-thon to raise funds for two students attending the Awako School in Ghana.

Each student was required to raise a minimum of $25.

"We set a minimum of $25 to focus on the fact that they're contributing to a cause and helping others," said school principal Trish Molzahn.

According to Molzahn, St. Anthony School has been involved with Awako for the past nine years when the first walls of the Ghana school were built. Since the school began the Awako-a-thon, approximately eight years ago, students have raised close to $15,000.

Students started the Awako-a-thon at 8 a.m. and after school finished for the day, they stayed in the school until the next morning.

"We play games throughout the night such as Minute to Win It and dodgeball. We let the students run through the halls and play a movie during the evening, and we take an early morning walk if the weather permits. We also do a lot of group games, there is a karaoke station set up with the microphones and there are also individual centres set up around the school," explained Molzahn prior to the Awako-a-thon.

"This is an important project for us. Often times we're disconnected with the rest of the world, and we need to take for granted what we have. Father Paul Menzies, who started the school in Ghana, visited St. Anthony once a year, and we present him with a cheque from the Awako-a-thon and the Art Walk for younger students," said Molzahn. She added that every year members of the Awako committee travel to Ghana and make a video updating what's happening at the school in terms of physical construction, such as the addition of two new classrooms, updates about the farm and the students who attend.

"One of our students, Theresa, will be graduating in four years. Another student, Max, moved away from the area, and we have a new student, whose name is Stephen. Our sponsorship of the students started about five years ago. I think the thing that strikes me the most is how happy these students are to go to school, and that's something we need to take for granted," added Molzahn.

What do you do when you are supposed to stay wide-awake during an Awako-a-thon? You do what these students at St. Anthony School did - you invest your own games. In this case, this is a game of wobble ball. The Awako-a-thon will be held June 5 to raise money for the Awako School in Ghana.

What a change a few minutes can make

Don Kitchin
Aim for Success member

As I drive home after a few evening past, I couldn't help but notice the burst of activity that was happening on the ball diamonds and soccer fields. Players were dressed in uniforms, and throwing baseballs back and forth, pitchers were on home plate practicing for that grand slam home run, soccer players were taking shots on net, and the entire area was full of people in motion. It was only a few months before that the diamonds and fields sat dormant, covered in snow and ice, darkness came early and people stayed in their vehicles getting to where they had to go, and running inside their destination before the cold snuck in and chilled them. Baseball uniforms were replaced with hockey jerseys and the crowds cheered at the players on the ice rather than on the field. What a change only a few months can make.

Our lives can be the same way. Some days we are the players on the field, full of energy, and wanting to get out in the sunshine and inhale all that life offers us. Our lives feel full of happiness and we are ready to take on what the day has in store. Other days our lives may feel like cold winter days when all we want to do is seclude ourselves from others and hide from the bitter cold outside.

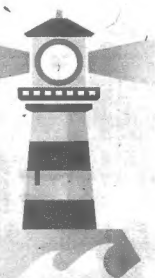

Sometimes I feel dormant like the fields in the winter, we have no energy and all we want to do is hibernate over and go back to sleep, avoiding the day ahead.

Our mental health works the same way. It is on an ever-changing continuum. The lower side of the continuum is when our mental health feels challenged. We may feel sadness, depression, trapped, with no way out. Our lives may seem bleak like the cold winter days and we may feel like these feelings will never end, we feel hopeless. The opposite side of the continuum is when we are feeling mentally well. We feel energized both physically and mentally, we feel we can cope with what life has to throw at us, we are willing to try new things and able to look at the positive side of situations we are in. We move up and down on this continuum throughout our lives. Sometimes we are at the low end, sometimes the high end, and sometimes in the middle.

How we deal with the circumstances that we face, all depends on where we find ourselves on this continuum. If something happens to us one week and we are at the lower half of the scale, our minds may fill with negative thoughts and we find ourselves unable to cope. If we are on the higher end of the scale the next week we may not give the same incident a second thought. Our goal should be to strive to be at the top half of the scale so when a storm comes in on a hot sunny day, we are able to deal with the rain, knowing a rainbow will soon follow, and the storm won't last forever.
